CANADA'S WELCOME

The ceremonial welcome extended to Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir has been met with such a formality appropriate to such an occasion. It expresses what is in the minds and hearts of Canadians regarding the arrival of the royal couple. They will be in every way pleasant, and they may get widely acquainted with Canada and Canadians, and come to regard the Dominion as home.

Officially they come to us as strangers, but John Buchan is no stranger to Canadian readers. He is a Scotsman and a Scot, and he is known for years, and known to be admired. Those who have followed David Crawford through his adventures in the heart of Fraser Canyon will find the north side of the river, and will continue to think of the Governor-General as a teller of stories who has inherited something of the gift of Robert Louis Stevenson. To such it will be hard indeed for Lord Tweedsmuir to supplant John Buchan.

WHAT BOOTS IT?

November 18th has been set by the League of Nations as the date on which economic sanctions against Italy will come into force. At their present rate of going the Italian armies will be by that time in the hands of Ethiopia as he wants, and it is due may be ready to make peace on the basis of things as they stand.

Penalties which cannot be got into operation in less than six weeks obviously lack a good deal as effective preventive of war. It won't do Italy and his people to have sanctions come into effect only when their armies have been smashed and the productive part of their country occupied by the invader. Possession is nine points of law when it comes to negotiating a settlement, and will the powers get Italy isolated enough to let them take their armies out of Ethiopia? Nobody can imagine that.

The achievement of the League is in prospect of being mainly a "moral" victory, with nothing accomplished but to show the nations are prepared to act together to impose the penalties prescribed by the League. That of course is something, and rather more than is to be hoped for, but it will not impress the Italians as meaning anything to them if Italy finds that the League is not strong enough to get the powers to get ready to get the penalties in motion.

CUT THE TAX RATE

Directly or else, the most important issue in the civil contest in Edmonton is that of reducing the tax-rate. That until it takes the form of a fifty-five mill rate makes the ownership of property doubtfully desirable at best. Reduction to fifty mills would do something to eliminate that doubt, and would encourage ratepayers to clear up their arrears, meet current levies, and keep their homes and places of business.

The property-owner is the one fixed asset the city has. While he continues to be a property-owner he is a source of revenue to the city. A sure source of future revenue. To enable and encourage him to keep possession of his property is one thing necessary to civic solvency and progress. That is no more important than the "balancing of the budget" for any year, or the question of whether the city should generate its supply of electricity.

The owners of Edmonton property are making a heroic fight to keep their holdings, to work off the arrears which have piled up against them, and to meet current levies, but to become debtors. They deserve encouragement in that effort, and they also need it. The record is clear on both points. They have been actively caught up the arrears while paying anything more than a five per cent levy under most conditions of mortgage. The mill rate is the most they should be asked to pay in these circumstances.

THROWING AWAY OUR CLAIM

Of the $350,000 Edmonton is providing this year for payment of unemployment relief, $300,000 of it is capitalized, and the rest paid out of current revenue, or money.
In fact of course this will not be paid out of revenue but out of borrowed money, as all the relief costs of former years have been paid. The amazing debt of the city, represented by a loan from the bank, a loan from the Provincial Government, notes issued to the school board and "cash" payments to the sinking fund, is larger than the whole amount the city will have paid for unemployment relief from 1930 to the end of the present year.
Taxpayers might ask members of the present or former councils how they figure out that relief costs have been paid out of revenue when the accumulated floating debt is more than these costs amount to.

It is not a fact, and only a pleasant pretence, that we have been or are paying any relief costs out of current taxation. We are paying them out of loans secured to cover the deficits they help to create at the end of each year.

It might do no harm to "kid" ourselves in this way that we are in part paying relief costs as we go, if there was no prospect that sooner or later there will be a show-down with the Dominion on the subject of relief costs and who should pay them. But it is as certain as anything in politics can have a hard time showing that they will have to take place, for the reason that the cities cannot carry the load.

When that time comes the city that produces debentures to show it had to borrow money for relief, and argues that it could not have paid out of revenue and will have a strong case to claim that it should be excused from paying the claims. But the city whose councils have claimed that it was paying those costs in part out of revenue will have a hard time showing that this wasn't done and couldn't have been done.

Suppose this show-down comes next year, and it should, what kind of a talk will Edmonton's council have to put up to the federal government to get back the $250,000 which the council of this year says it is paying out of current revenue?

The post old Canadian National Railways do seem to be getting the bumps these days. When there isn't a crew of public wreckers trying to pull them to pieces at Ottawa there is a flood at Bankey Canyon or an earthquake in northern Quebec.

Domestic cheese collections at Montreal one day last week amounted to $1,340,861, a new record for the port. That was just about enough to pay the day's interest on the bonds which have been issued by the Dominion government, and have been handed over to private parties for the privilege of using the public credit for public purposes.

One marvels at the courage or desperation that impelled people to settle on these sub-arctic lands in the early days of the Dominion.

Some of the early settlers may be regarded as victims of optimism, hoping to be rewarded for their pioneering as populations flooded north. Many of them found themselves of solitude as an escape from the mad rush of the modern competitive system. With a garden, a few pigs and a few chickens, and a few head of cattle, they were content to live on their own.

Winnipeg, Maurice Kelly, son of Thomas Kelly, told me that he got tired of the routine of his quarters and the food. I don't bother with breakfast now except to take a cup of coffee. None of the food is any more good, and it seems to taste right. When I get home I have Mr. Reffers make me an old-fashioned hot pot with potatoes. It tastes like real food after all the fancy dishes served up on the ship.

It recalled a confusion of a chief steward in your day, and I don't know if it is still so. I had a very good dinner in the ship, but I don't know if it is still so. I had a very good dinner in the ship, but I don't know if it is still so.

The Passing Show

Been trying a dozen second-hand book stores without success in finding a copy of Spenser's "Decline of the West."

"Not more than a dozen or a dozen and a half copies were sold in the whole of Vancouver. Cost two or three dollars, and it was a long time to start with."

Don't continue the quest for second-hand books, for I am sure you will find a good copy of a new copy. Used books are not so scarce as the uncertainties of used ones.

Don't give you a shock to learn that the huckstering advice of Horace Greeley, "Go West, Young Man; Go West," has been duplicated by a learned volume on "The Decline of the West."

Uncle Sam is doing on a large scale what the Dominion Government is doing on a small scale—paying to move people off the land on which they have settled. Not because the land was valuable and needed by the government, but because the land was economically valueless, and it was cheaper to re-establish the families elsewhere than supply them with roads, trails and schools.

Recessed the A.A.A.—the Agricultural Adjustment Administration—happens that the work of re-establishment on its hands. It has $75,000,000 to spend, with an additional $200,000,000 in the offering, included in the $4,800,000,000 recently voted by Congress to help to alleviate the internal economic distress of the country.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE
On November 6 do not mind or waste words this day. There will be just as much danger in your silence as in your chatter.

In your social contacts be careful that you do not unknowingly speak belittling about a relative, friend or acquaintance. Be guarded and engaged, as well as those dwelling in the seventh heaven of delight, run the danger of starting a lot of unnecessary letter-writing, which will probably be of no use to you.

If a woman and November 6 is your birthday, you will probably find that you will accept advice, your progress is apt to be rapid.

The child born on November 6 usually, when it reaches its majority, requires good, sound advice as to what career it should pursue. It is most important that it is given the right start.

If a man and November 6 is your natal day, you will find that you will accept advice, your progress is apt to be rapid.

Learning Longer Living

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

While the average length of life is fifty-eight years, there are many people who live to be much older. It is estimated that there are in the United States and Canada over five thousand people who are over one hundred years of age. I quote this to let you know that it is possible that many of them are still healthy and active.

One noticeable thing about these people who have reached ninety or a hundred years is that they are mostly all thin people. They are not fat, but they are healthy.

Dr. F. McCoy says that it is possible for a stout person to reach the three score and ten mark, but it is doubtful if any have ever reached five score years. Another noticeable fact is that nearly all of the men who remain active in important business at an advanced age are thin, wiry type, such as Henry Ford, John D. Rockefeller, and Andrew Mellon.

If you want to live to a ripe old age you must avoid eating fatty foods, especially the concentrated food, especially the starches and sugars, and use more raw and cooked vegetables.

It is not only desirable to eat healthy food, but it is desirable to be healthy during the days when you are on this earth. If you are overweight when you begin to live right, you are overweight when you reach that age you should immediately begin to reduce your weight.

Statistics show that married men live longer than single men. This is because married men are more likely to be healthy and active.

On this date in 1818 there was signed one of the most important of the treaties between the crown and the Indians. Treaty No. 20, known as "Surrender No. 20," was signed at Smith's Creek in the township of Hope in Durham county, the place having been named after Peter Smith, who had been living there for many years. It was the first of a series of treaties which were signed between the crown and the Indians.

In addition to the fact that the treaty was signed at Smith's Creek, the treaty included two small parts of the township of Hope, the north half of Durham, the northern part of Ontario county, and the parts of Muskoka and Haliburton lying south of the township of Hope.

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland.
Nov. 5.—For the first time in the history of Anglo-Ethiopian relations, Great Britain is sending military experts to Addis Ababa to be attached to the legation.

Lieut.-Col. H. B. Holt is en route to become the military attache, accompanied by Capt. J. Taylor. They were dispatched there to advise Sir Sidney Barton, British minister, in protective measures for British subjects there. Another of their duties will be to report the progress of the war to London.

AMUSEMENTS

It is her twentieth picture made in America.

Seizelnic and so masterfully directed by Clarence Brown, is evicted in every scene—even when she appears sadder at the realization that her sublime happiness with the man she loves cannot continue forever.

Her performance as Anna Karenina places her at the very top of her long starring career. It reveals her as a greater actress than she was before, and more beautiful than she has ever been in her former pictures.

EMPRESS

Roaring out of the Orient, a phoebe, of, fieser, hoo, hoo, hoo

screen of the Empire theatre
Friday, where it will continue
Saturday and Wednesday.
It is "China Seas," which unites three of the greatest stars of filming for the first time in almost five years: Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Wallace Beery.
"China Seas" is no cakewalk entertainment. It is red-blooded gripping, intense melodrama from tippling to end. There is not a single moment in which action lags or the pace slackens. It has a background of hurricanes and loosey raids by modern Chinese gangs, and against this vivid celluloid moves a human drama no less powerful.
All the action takes place on the hefty old liner Kin Lung as it goes through the storm seas between Hongkong and Singapore with a cargo of gold and freighted with an ever more interesting pro-human passions.

Another War Looms

Another serious international incident is threatening as the result of a border fight between Soviet troops and Manchurian soldiers in the Far East. The fight occurred at Nivnara near Peking, an important railroad junction north of Vladivostok. Russia said that a small detachment of Japanese troops had crossed the border into Manchuria. The Japanese government denied the report, saying that the troops were on a peace mission.

Tropical Storms Hurt Fisheries Of Nova Scotia

Changing Conditions in N. S. Waters Herald Approaching Hurricane Before They Reach the Vicinity.

ST. JOHN'S, N.B., Nov. 5.—How tropical wind storms sweeping northward may be detected far in advance by changes in conditions in the water off Nova Scotia, and how these storms may cause a large percentage of the fishery to be lost, resulting in a loss of millions of dollars to the fishing industry off the coast of that province, are explained in a paper prepared by H. H. Hickey, hydrographer at the Atlantic Fisheries Laboratory.

Advances in the knowledge of the nature of the storms, and the changes in the middle latitudes, where the storms are most frequent, have been made. Extratropical cyclones, those found outside the tropics, almost always move in a westerly direction. Hickey illustrated how tropical cyclones usually come at the equator, and then move in a westerly direction. He also showed how the storms can cause a large percentage of the fishery to be lost.

WEALTH A RESPONSIBILITY

Even in the Days of Pepps
From the celebrated diary of Samuel Pepps, Secretary of the Navy, we learn of the troubles of the king for wealth in the time of the Stuart Kings. On 14, 1665 Year of the Plague in London—'So here, and put up several things to carry to Wales, and upon serious thoughts I am advised by W. Giffin to let my money and plate rest there, as being as safe a place, nobody imagining that people would leave any money in their houses now, when all their families are gone. So for the present that being my opinion, I don't leave them there still. But, Lord! to see the trouble that it puts a man in, to keep safe what will pass a man's hand in getting together.'

Offers a Service Based on Long Experience!

Whether you prefer to have glasses made according to the prescription of your own oculist or have your eyes tested and examined by one of our efficient staff, you will be equally satisfied with the high standard of workmanship and service maintained by The T. Eaton Co. Optical Department.

First, there is our highly qualified registered optometrist. Then our exceptionally quick service on existing lenses according to prescription. Special filters make sure that the frames are properly selected and adjusted to suit individual tastes and characteristics. Finally everything that our skilled knowledge, modern equipment and best quality materials can provide is available for our customers in the Optical Department.
